Siezen, Jan Kok, Tjakko Abee, Gertjan Schaafsma, 2002-09-30 Foods fermented with lactic acid bacteria are an important part of the human diet Lactic acid bacteria play an essential role in the preservation of food raw materials and contribute to the nutritional organoleptic and health properties of food products and animal feed The importance of lactic acid bacteria in the production of foods throughout the world has resulted in a continued scientific interest in these micro organisms over the last two decades by academic research groups as well as by industry This research has resulted in a number of important scientific breakthroughs and has led to new applications The most recent of these advances is the establishment of the complete genome sequences of a number of different lactic acid bacterial species To communicate and stimulate the research on lactic acid bacteria and their applications a series of tri annual symposia on lactic acid bacteria was started in 1983 under the auspices of the Netherlands Society for Microbiology NVVM which was later also supported by the Federation of European Microbiological Societies FEMS The aim of these state of the art symposia is to offer a unique platform for universities institutes and industry in this area of biotechnology to present recent work to obtain information on new developments and to exchange views with colleagues from all over the world on scientific progress and applications The growing number of participants at these symposia has been a clear demonstration of the interest of the international industrial and scientific community in this area of research The 7th Symposium is based on a number of plenary lectures that review the scientific progress of the last years in the different areas of research on lactic acid bacteria and which are documented in this special issue of Antonie van Leeuwenhoek      U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Library System Book Catalog Holdings as of July 1973 United States. In ancient times foods fermented with lactic acid bacteria already constituted an important part of the human diet From then on lactic acid bacteria have played an essential role in the preservation of food raw materials and have contributed to the nutritional organoleptic and health properties of human food products and animal feed The important function that lactic acid bacteria still have in the production of foods all over the world has resulted in a growing scientific interest in these micro organisms by academic research groups as well as by industry During the last 15 years this research has been stimulated by major internationally coordinated funding efforts that have resulted in a variety of important scientific breakthroughs and have led to new applications Written by international experts in the field this issue of Antonie van Leeuwenhoek documents these developments with respect to genetics metabolism and the application of lactic acid bacteria for industrial and potential medical applications In this book the first complete genome of a lactic acid bacterium is presented The book will serve as a reference source and also as an indispensable source of information for further development and exploration of the field

The Lactic Acid Bacteria is planned as a series in a number of volumes and the interest shown in it appears to justify a cautious optimism that a series comprising at least five volumes will appear in the fullness of time This being so I feel that it is desirable to introduce the series by providing a little of the history of the events which culminated in the decision to produce such a series I also wish to indicate the boundaries of the group The Lactic Acid Bacteria as I have defined them for the present purposes and to outline my hopes for future topics in the series

lowe my interest in the lactic acid bacteria LAB to the late Dr Cyril Rainbow who introduced me to their fascinating world when he offered me a place with him to work for a PhD on the carbohydrate metabolism of some lactic rods isolated from English beer breweries by himself and others notably Dr Dora Kulka He was particularly interested in their preference for maltose over glucose as a source of carbohydrate for growth expressed in most cases as a more rapid growth on the disaccharide but one isolate would grow only on maltose Eventually we showed that maltose was being utilised by direct fermentation as the older texts called it specifically by the phosphorolysis which had first been demonstrated for maltose by Doudoroff and his associates in their work on maltose metabolism by a strain of Neisseria meningitidis

Actinomycetes in Biotechnology Bozzano G Luisa, 2012-12-02 The actinomycetes are a group of bacteria well known as producers of antibiotics. With the advent of molecular biology they have become important to biotechnologists in the search for new antibiotics, vitamins, enzyme inhibitors etc. They also play an important role in the biodegradation of wastes and their wide natural distribution in soil, composts, water and elsewhere in the environment makes them important to the agricultural and waste industries. This research book presents a broad view of the current interest in actinomycetes ranging from isolation, screening of actinomycetes, discovery of new antibiotics, a substantial contribution on genetic manipulation to actinomycetes in agriculture, forestry and the threat of actinomycetes as pollutants in the environment. The chapters which have been written by experts are intended to provide a balanced view of the opportunities and problems in an expanding field of interest.

Genetics and Biotechnology of Lactic Acid Bacteria Michael J. Gasson, W. de Vos, 2012-12-06 A prime reference volume for geneticists, food technologists and biotechnologists in the academic and industrial sectors. Fermentations with lactic acid bacteria determine important qualities such as taste, shelf life and food values. New methods of food production require fast and reliable manufacture which has led to a dramatic surge of interest in the genetic, microbiological and biochemical properties of lactic acid bacteria.

Stress and Environmental Regulation of Gene Expression and Adaptation in Bacteria, 2 Volume Set Frans J. de Bruijn, 2016-09-06 Bacteria in various habitats are subject to continuously changing environmental conditions such as nutrient deprivation, heat and cold stress, UV radiation, oxidative stress, desiccation, acid stress, nitrosative stress, cell envelope stress, heavy metal exposure, osmotic stress and others. In order to survive they have to respond to these conditions by adapting their physiology through sometimes drastic changes in gene expression. In addition they may adapt by changing their morphology, forming biofilms, fruiting bodies or spores, filaments, Viable But Not Culturable (VBNC) cells or moving away from stress compounds via chemotaxis. Changes in gene expression constitute the main component of the bacterial response to stress and environmental changes and involve a myriad of different mechanisms including alternative sigma factors, bi or tri component regulatory systems, small non coding RNA, s chaperones, CHRIS, Cas systems, DNA repair, toxin, antitoxin systems, the stringent response, efflux pumps, alarmones and modulation of the cell envelope or membranes to name a few. Many regulatory elements are conserved in different bacteria, however there are endless variations on the theme and novel elements of gene regulation in bacteria inhabiting particular environments are constantly being discovered. Especially in pathogenic bacteria colonizing the human body a plethora of bacterial responses to innate stresses such as pH, reactive nitrogen and oxygen species and antibiotic stress are being described. An attempt is made to not only cover model systems but give a broad overview of the stress responsive regulatory systems in a variety of bacteria including medically important bacteria where elucidation of certain aspects of these systems could lead to treatment strategies of the pathogens. Many of the regulatory systems being uncovered are specific but there is also considerable cross talk between different circuits Stress and Environmental Regulation of Gene Expression and Adaptation in Bacteria is a comprehensive two volume work bringing together both review and original research articles on key topics in stress and environmental control of gene expression in bacteria Volume One contains key overview chapters as well as content on one two three component regulatory systems and stress responses sigma factors and stress responses small non coding RNAs and stress responses toxin antitoxin systems and stress responses stringent response to stress responses to UV irradiation SOS and double stranded systems repair systems and stress adaptation to both oxidative and osmotic stress and desiccation tolerance and drought stress Volume Two covers heat shock responses chaperonins and stress cold shock responses adaptation to acid stress nitrosative stress and envelope stress as well as iron homeostasis metal resistance quorum sensing chemotaxis and biofilm formation and viable but not culturable VBNC cells Covering the full breadth of current stress and environmental control of gene expression studies and expanding it towards future advances in the field these two volumes are a one stop reference for non medical molecular geneticists interested in gene regulation under stress
