Jakubiak, 2023-12-28 This edited volume extends current voluntourism theorizing by critically examining the intersections among various forms of work leisure travel and language learning teaching The book's contributors investigate volunteer tourism and its cognates such as working holidaymaking international internships and gap year labor as discursive fields in which powerful ideas about language's their speakers and pedagogical practices are propagated worldwide The various authors chapters shed light on the hegemony of global English the social consequences of linguistic commodification and neoliberal rationalities the ways in which speaker identity positions can alter the exchange value of languages and how language competencies are tied to power in the labor market among related topics This volume will be of interest to readers in Applied Linguistics Critical Sociolinguistics Educational and Linguistic Anthropology Tourism and Leisure Studies Migration and Mobility Studies and Language Teaching and Learning

Resources in Education, 1997-07 A Critical Auto/Ethnography of Learning Spanish Phiona Stanley, 2016-11-10 The premise that intercultural contact produces intercultural competence underpins much rationalization of backpacker tourism and in country language education However if insufficiently problematized pre-existing constructions of cultural otherness may hinder intercultural competence development This is nowhere truer than in contexts in which wide disparities of power wealth and privilege exist and where such positionings may go unproblematized This study contributes to theoretical understandings of how intercultural competence develops through intercultural contact situations through a detailed multiple case study of three conceptually comparable contexts in which Western backpackers study Spanish in Latin America This experience often bundled with home stay volunteer work social and tourist experiences offers a rich set of empirical data within which to understand the nature of intercultural competence and the processes through which it may be developed Models of a single context free transferable intercultural competence are rejected. Instead suggestions are made as to how educators might help prepare intercultural sojourners by scaffolding their intercultural reflections and problematizing their own intersectional identities and their assumptions. The study is a critical ethnography with elements of autoethnographic reflection. The book therefore also contributes to development of this qualitative research methodology and provides an empirical example of its application.

Teacher Learning in Language Teaching Donald Freeman, Jack C. Richards, 1996-02-23. This book introduces a new field of educational research called teacher learning as it applies to the teaching of languages. Up until recently the study of second language teacher education has focused mainly on the knowledge base and specific skills needed for effective teaching. This book invites us to look at teacher education from a fresh point of view through an exploration of the thinking and learning processes of individuals as they learn to teach. Seventeen original articles based on studies done in North America, Europe, Asia, and Australia provide examples of pioneering research into the ways that individuals learn to teach languages and the roles that previous experience, social context, and professional training play in the process. The collection thus helps establish a research base for this newly developing field.

Teaching and Learning Language: Current Trends and Practices (Penerbit USM) Ambigapathy Pandian, Sunny Tan Siew Bek, Shaik Abdul Malik Mohamed Ismail, 2014. This book represents a collection of papers that relate to the challenges and problems posed by the ever-changing and diversified nature of today's classroom. The papers discuss and demonstrate methodologies and learning strategies and in the process recommend effective practices that are practical and open to adaptation for different teaching and learning contexts. They range from suggestions on how to exploit information technology resources to individual or specific case studies These case studies report on a variety of contextual issues and problems that are specified to particular learning contexts This book therefore thus not only offers examples of tried and tested teaching strategies but also offers useful insights into specific sociocultural problems that are experienced by learners as well as teachers and interested stakeholders in particular settings and countries The papers offer a comprehensive documentation of past as well as present problems faced by teachers policy makers and students and discuss ways and strategies of overcoming such problems such that the teaching and learning process is not only enhanced but made more meaningful and fulfilling to both teachers and learners The inherently global perspective of the papers in this book makes it an enriching compendium A Practical Method for Learning Spanish
