Poetry, Poetry as Art, from Whistler to Stravinsky and Beyond Prof Dr Peter Dayan, 2013-01-28 In 1877 Ruskin accused Whistler of flinging a pot of paint in the public's face. Was he right? After all, Whistler always denied that the true function of art was to represent anything. If a painting does not represent what it is, other than mere paint flung in the public's face, Whistler's answer was simple: painting is music, or it is poetry. Georges Braque, half a century later, echoed Whistler's answer. So did Braque's friends Apollinaire and Ponge. They presented their poetry as music too, and as painting. But meanwhile composers such as Satie and Stravinsky were presenting their own art music as if it transposed the values of painting or of poetry. The fundamental principle of this intermedial aesthetic, which bound together an extraordinary fraternity of artists in all media in Paris from 1885 to 1945, was this: we must always think about the value of a work of art not within the logic of its own medium, but as if it transposed the value of art in another medium. Peter Dayan traces the history of this principle, how it created our very notion of great art, why it declined as a vision from the 1960s, and how in the 21st century it is fighting back.

Art, Passion, Poetry Barbara Sher Tinsley, 2015-11-22 Says the author: Art Passion Poetry was inspired largely by the fact that with teaching, research, writing, and painting, I have had less time for playing the piano, which I dearly love and have played since age five. I have transmuted the musical urge into a different kind of music: poetry, where I think my musical instincts are more developed than at the keyboard. However, the words of poems are as notes to me, and each line a chord or arpeggio or trill that when the poem ends has given me a distinct piece of music with reflections of lived experience, memory, creativity, analysis, passion. My poems are musical pieces. When I finished selecting the right poems for my title, I realized that I had written a musical or poetic memoir of my life, one that has adhered from a love of linguistic and historical analysis, together with Art Passion Poetry. Art Passion Poetry all play a part in each poem of this collection in a particular way and usually in more than one way, often quite unanticipated. The poem's title may or may not reveal the major theme or themes of that poem. There are often choices of ethics, aesthetics, sensuality, and even cultural and political values that readers may be obliged to make to arrive at a conclusion, near or far from the poet's. This is because Barbara Sher Tinsley believes that poetry places at least as much responsibility on the reader as on her own shoulders, while recognizing in a profound way that the transmission of any poem is a shared task one of decoding the artistry and passion of each offering She also engages her readers in conversations as significant to our human experience whether creative or procreative or merely sensuous as others that contribute to our economic educational professional or mental well being Readers will discover that art poetry and passion are really one
