Global Competencies Angela K. Salmon, Aixa Pérez-Prado, Karin Morrison, Flavia Iuspa, 2024-05-23 This book presents children's literature as a platform for learning and helping young readers develop the knowledge, skills, and attitudes needed to thrive in an interconnected and diverse global society. It draws from various theoretical frameworks and research findings to implement critical literacy and culturally responsive teaching in the meaning-making process. The book focuses on global competencies and Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as intertwined concepts that work together to foster a more sustainable, inclusive, and equitable world. Developing global competencies empowers children and communities to actively participate in achieving the SDGs and addressing the pressing challenges of our time. The authors set high expectations on children as actors in transforming society. To facilitate this, the book offers an overview of child development theories as a foundation for designing developmentally appropriate practices to extend children's books toward deep thinking and understanding. The book includes sample lessons that use cutting-edge research-based pedagogies and tools such as visible thinking routines and other approaches. Those lessons also help readers identify the Habits of Mind (HOM) children can develop by listening to and discussing stories. The HOM are attributes of good problem finders and problem solvers needed when confronting complex issues. The book provides resources and sample lessons that implement different thinking strategies to engage children in questioning and analyzing what they read, making them more critical. This is how children deeply understand the world and their role in creating positive change. The book aims to cultivate change makers and global citizens through stories. It offers innovative approaches, including online learning options, in accessible and engaging ways to help children think globally and act locally. Through the power of children's literature, this book serves a larger agenda: To build a more thoughtful world for future generations. By caring for and learning from one another through suggested activities in this book, they will share the riches and resources from across the world. As children learn about the promise of actions toward the UN Sustainable Goals, they can imagine living in an interdependent learning community where all people continually searching for ways to trust each other, learn together, and grow toward greater intelligence. Arthur Costa and Bena Kallick Co-Founders and Directors of The Institute for Habits of Mind      Launching Learners in Science, PreK-5 Kerry C. Williams, George E. Veomett, 2007 Expertly describes how educators can plan a science curriculum that facilitates primary students' understanding of skills and development in science, preparing them for careers requiring any level of scientific knowledge and giving them science literacy to make decisions that benefit society and the world. Robert D. Sweetland Professor Wayne State College Design science instruction that helps develop enthusiastic young minds while meeting national standards. Teaching science means doing science and involves three elements: knowing content, knowing children, and teachers knowing themselves as teachers and learners. Kerry C. Williams and George E. Veomett describe principles and requirements that reflect National Science Education Standards for the active learning of science. They identify key ingredients for primary students and their development as young scientists. This resource is linked to research on cognitive and neural development and motivational theory from the work of Piaget and Vygotsky Teachers inexperienced in science will discover new ways to think about science while they develop lessons that are rich fun and authentic for themselves and their students All educators will find examples questions stories and thought provoking ideas to give students a strong start in science achievement plus Six key elements to build into science instruction observing representing organizing patterning and questioning experimenting and sharing How to s for incorporating inquiry workshops centers and projects in primary and elementary classrooms A four step system choice planning doing reviewing that helps promote learning in science and across all subjects Launching Learners in Science PreK 5 helps educators teach science in a way that will expand their own confidence and let them make a lasting difference in children s lives
