City Boys Robert Sklar, 2018-05-09 Urban Originals When the mean streets went Hollywood the city boy went with them tough clever fast talking handy with a girl or a gun Film scholar Robert Sklar weaves the professional personal and political lives of three such city boys Jimmy Cagney Humphrey Bogart and John Garfield Sklar follows the city boys from their disparate upbringings in New York City to Hollywood where the films they made for Warner Bros brought them fame even while the studio often exploited their talents and fumbled their fortunes The city boys struggled to maintain their leftist political ideologies against the communist witch hunts that embroiled Hollywood an aspect of their careers that usually gets short shrift but which Sklar examines in the context of a politically and culturally evolving America an America that had in many ways left the city boy with his swagger and masculine bravado behind In their later years with varying success Cagney Bogart and Garfield sought to shed the city boy mantle that had made them stars Sklar chronicles this bittersweet end of the city boy with thoughtful insight examining the cinematic and cultural legacy left behind by these urban originals and their influence on a generation of young male moviegoers

The Human Figure on Film Seth Barry Watter, 2023-10-01 The Human Figure on Film asks what it is we look for when we look at human beings projected on a screen. People have appeared onscreen since film was invented. Nothing could be more common and yet nothing confounds us more than a filmed human being. Scholars and critics have attempted to reduce the mystery, creating methodologies that make this figure legible. Some of their efforts form the subject of this book. Each chapter is devoted to a single central concept: the natural, the pictorial, the institutional, and the fictional that viewers have used to make sense of what they see. Each concept in turn is tied to the work and methods of a particular kind of historical observer: the natural historian Ray L. Birdwhistell, the aesthete or pictorialist Victor O. Freeburg, the anthropologist of institutions Hortense Powdermaker, and the critic of fiction V. F. Perkins. All of these researchers have their own interests and criteria of understanding, ranging from a microscopic look at gestures to a broad view of characters. Using a combination of critical history, biography, and formal analysis, The Human Figure on Film offers a fresh approach to the problem of figuration in an age of digital cinema. It is at once a cross section of the field of film studies, a handbook of methods, and an inquiry into the nature of inquiry itself.

Focus On: 100 Most Popular United States National Film Registry Films Wikipedia contributors, Law in Film David Alan Black, 1999. The courtroom like the movie theater is an arena for the telling and interpreting of stories. Investigators piece them together, witnesses tell them, advocates retell them, and judges and juries assess their plausibility. These narratives reconstitute absent events through words, and their filming constitutes a double narrative, one important cultural practice rendered in the terms of another. Drawing on both film studies and legal scholarship, David A. Black explores the implications of representing court procedure as well as other phases of legal process in film. His study ranges from an inquiry into the common metaphorical ground between film and law, explored through the detective and the witness, to a critical survey of legal writings about the cinema, to close analyses of key films about law. In examining multiple aspects of law in film, Black sustains a focus on the central importance of narrative while also unearthing the influences of pleasure in film, power in law, that lie beyond the narrative realm. Black's penetrating study treats questions of narrative authority and structure, social authority and cultural history, revealing the underlying historical, cultural, and cognitive connections between legal and cinematic practices.

Raoul Walsh Marilyn Moss, 2011-06-01. Raoul Walsh (1887-1980) was known as one of Hollywood's most adventurous, iconoclastic, and creative directors. He carved out an illustrious career and made films that transformed the Hollywood studio yarn into a thrilling art form. Walsh belonged to that early generation of directors along with John Ford and Howard Hawks who worked in the fledgling film industry of the early twentieth century, learning to make movies with shoestring budgets. Walsh's generation invented a Hollywood that made movies seem bigger than life itself. In the first ever full-length biography of Raoul Walsh, author Marilyn Ann Moss recounts Walsh's life and achievements in a career that spanned more than half a century and produced upwards of two hundred films, many of them cinema classics. Walsh originally entered the movie business as an actor, playing the role of John Wilkes Booth.

in D W Griffith's The Birth of a Nation 1915 In the same year under Griffith's tutelage Walsh began to direct on his own Soon he left Griffith's company for Fox Pictures where he stayed for more than twenty years It was later at Warner Bros that he began his golden period of filmmaking Walsh was known for his romantic flair and playful persona Involved in a freak auto accident in 1928 Walsh lost his right eye and began wearing an eye patch which earned him the suitably dashing moniker the one eyed bandit During his long and illustrious career he directed such heavyweights as Humphrey Bogart James Cagney Errol Flynn and Marlene Dietrich and in 1930 he discovered future star John Wayne
