Boatwright focuses on the emperor's direct interactions with Rome's cities

exploring the many benefactions for which he was celebrated on coins and in literary works and inscriptions Although such evidence is often as imprecise as it is laudatory its collective analysis undertaken for the first time together with all other related material reveals that over 130 cities received at least one benefaction directly from Hadrian The benefactions mediated by members of the empire's municipal elite touched all aspects of urban life they included imperial patronage of temples and hero tombs engineering projects promotion of athletic and cultural competitions settlement of boundary disputes and remission of taxes Even as he manifested imperial benevolence Hadrian reaffirmed the self sufficiency and traditions of cities from Spain to Syria the major exception being his harsh treatment of Jerusalem which sparked the Third Jewish Revolt Overall the assembled evidence points to Hadrian's recognition of imperial munificence to cities as essential to the peace and prosperity of the empire Boatwright's treatment of Hadrian and Rome's cities is unique in that it encompasses events throughout the empire drawing insights from archaeology and art history as well as literature economy and religion

Jeffrey H. Loria, Julie Loria, 2021-11-23 A moving recognizable look at life on lockdown and the effect the coronavirus pandemic had across the world because every city had a story to tell and at the end of it all we were all in it together In the past year hospitals filled highways and subways emptied landmarks and parks were deserted our healthcare workers became increasingly fatigued and frustrated and nearly all human activity paused In photographs The Great Wall and The Colosseum look photoshopped with no tourists in sight This book is unique in that it creates a visual narrative to document that emptiness as a way to reflect and to find solace amid the shock A year later it's something we've all seen and can relate to This is a stunning collection of the abandoned and austere sights of fifteen major cities throughout the world during the peak outbreak of COVID 19 With their fine art backgrounds and through their network of professional photographers Julie and Jeffrey Loria worked together to capture the unprecedented lockdown conditions worldwide The photos show a range of emotions from the physical and psychological weight of caskets being carried to a Rio cemetery to the completely empty and eerie Times Square and Rodeo Drive to the patriotic pride in Rome's t-shirt display honoring their Italian flag colors as a symbol of hope The photographs are not only a reminder of the harrowing pandemic that hushed some of the world's greatest urban streets but also proof that across the globe we were all in this together Beneath the somberness in these images there is a hint of beauty amid the stillness but most of all there is the presence of hope and promise that we will thrive again Cities featured include New York Jerusalem Boston Tokyo Paris Los Angeles Rome Rio de Janeiro San Francisco Washington DC London Miami Tel Aviv Madrid Chicago
