Civil Service Reform:

Civil Service Reform, 2002-06-04 The World Bank and the IMF hosted a workshop in September 2001 to review the effectiveness of programmes for civil service reform and to propose ways to improve future joint efforts Participants considered case studies of civil service administrations in 11 countries The main conclusion reached was that both organisations should be involved in collaboration earlier in the reform process helping national administrations to develop a medium term fiscal framework foster politically feasible reforms and strengthen data collection Civil Service Reform Alan K. Campbell, United States. Office of Personnel Management, 1980 China's Civil Service Reform Wang Xiaoqi, 2012 As part of China's overall reform process China's civil service has also been reformed beginning in the late 1970s undergoing a major change in 1993 with the implementation of a new Civil Service System with the reforms continuing to unfold thereafter This book based on extensive original research outlines the civil service reforms and assesses their effectiveness Management of Public Service Reform Joan Corkery, 1998 The reform of public administration to adapt to the pressures and new requirements of an ever changing world has become a major global phenomenon This study has been produced by the International Institute of Administrative Sciences and the European Centre for Development Policy Management The Promise and Paradox of Civil Service Reform Patricia W. Ingraham, David H. Civil Service Reform in Latin America and the Caribbean Shahid Amjad Chaudhry, Gary James Reid, Waleed Haider Malik, 1994-01-01 This collection of papers was presented at the World Bank Conference on Civil service reform in Latin America and the Caribbean held in 1993 The goal of the conference was to promote the flow of ideas among researchers and practitioners in the civil s Civil Service Reform and the World Bank Barbara Nunberg, John R. Nellis, 1995-01-01 Annotation Surveys the World Bank's experience in supporting developing country civil service reforms and begins to assess the progress made The World Bank recognizes the importance of the civil service to the general welfare of the 4.6 billion people in low and middle income countries Between 1981 and 1991 civil service reform was a prominent feature of 90 World Bank lending operations This paper surveys the Bank's experience in supporting this reform and assesses the progress made

The lending operations concentrated on two separate dimensions 1 Shorter term emergency steps to reform public pay and employment policies which center on measures to contain the cost and the size of the civil service 2 longer term civil service strengthening efforts directed toward ongoing sustained management improvements After examining the record of these reforms the authors conclude that the results have been mixed at best They recommend greater emphasis on devising a coherent far reaching strategy for reform and on detailing the set of tactics by which these goals will be achieved

Civil Service Reform in the States J. Edward Kellough, Lloyd G. Nigro, 2012-02-01 Civil Service Reform in the States examines the critical importance of civil service systems in modern government and popular efforts to reform those systems The book provides an up to date analysis and assessment of public personnel reforms undertaken by various state governments since 1990 and the extent to which these reforms have been implemented or resisted With chapters written by nationally recognized experts on civil service and civil service reform this book will appeal to public policy makers practitioners and students alike

Civil Service Reform in Francophone Africa 'Ladipo Adamolekun, Guy de Lusignan, Armand Atomate, 1997-01-01 The world's financial markets are rapidly integrating into a single global marketplace and developing countries are being drawn into this process starting from different points and moving at various speeds Those with adequate institutions and sound policies in place may proceed smoothly along the road toward financial integration and gain the many benefits that integration can bring Most of the developing economies lack many of the necessary prerequisites for such a move a few are so unprepared that integration may do them more harm than good Developing countries may have little choice about whether to follow this path advances in communications and new developments in finance have made the course inevitable but they may still choose the ways in which they proceed choosing the policies that benefit the economy and averting potential shocks This World Bank report looks at the important challenges both sets of countries face in a new age of global capital The book presents new and compelling evidence that while low interest rates in industrial countries provided an initial impetus to the surge in private capital flows during 1989-93 these flows have entered a new phase driven by increased financial integration The report analyzes the causes and effects of integration with a particular emphasis on how developing countries in the nascent stages of integration can learn from the experiences of the more rapidly integrating developing countries

OECD Public Governance Reviews Benchmarking Civil Service Reform in Kazakhstan OECD, 2018-06-08 Civil service modernisation is a key priority in Kazakhstan This report examines how Kazakhstan's practices compare against OECD countries and suggests areas for further improvement

House of Commons - Committee of Public Accounts: Civil Service Reform - HC 473 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2013-09-20 The 2012 Civil Service Reform Plan the Plan published in June 2012 outlines plans to transform the civil service so that it is sharper and quicker more delivery focused and has sufficient commercial digital project and change management skills The Cabinet Office is responsible for overseeing implementation of the Plan The Committee hope that the reforms and enhanced capabilities will help prevent the failures in project and programme delivery it has seen so often but is concerned however that government has not set itself objective measures for assessing the impact of its reforms. If the public is to have confidence in the system for holding permanent secretaries accountable the Government must be clear about the detail of what each permanent secretary is expected to achieve and how their performance will be assessed. Commercial and contracting skills in the civil service remain weak and underdeveloped despite the many attempts to address this skills deficiency in recent years. Efforts to fill skills gaps are hindered by real or perceived barriers to recruiting people with the necessary expertise and paying them enough. The process for overseeing major projects lacks real teeth and is seemingly unable to stop ill conceived or poorly managed projects. Yet the Government will only be successful in cutting public spending with minimum impact on frontline services if it finds new and innovative ways to deliver its programmes. This innovation can only be implemented if the Civil Service has the necessary skills and competencies.

A Decade of Civil Service Reform in Sub-Saharan Africa Mr. Ian Lienert, Jitendra R. Modi, 1997-12-01. This paper assesses a decade of experience in civil service reform in a sample of 32 sub-Saharan African countries. Many countries have made an important start towards reducing excessive staffing levels and the nominal wage bill but less progress has been made in decompressing salary differentials in favor of higher grade staff. In the CFA franc zone countries real wages fell sharply after the 1994 devaluation but the wage bill relative to tax revenue is still high in many countries. There is a need to consolidate quantitative first generation reforms that contribute to macroeconomic stabilization. Equally important is the need to make progress on qualitative second generation reforms especially remuneration and promotion policies that reward performance and measures to improve civil service management. Such policies will require strong political commitment by governments.

A country by country synopsis of the public sector reform programmes in 40 Commonwealth developing countries with a profile of each country and an outline of the reform initiatives implementation processes achievements and problems encountered.

Memorandum on the 2012 Civil Service Reform Plan Great Britain: National Audit Office, 2013-01-24. The government published its Civil Service Reform Plan the Plan in June 2012 www.civilservice.gov.uk/reform. It followed the publication of the 2011 Open Public Services White Paper Cm 8145 ISBN 9780101814522 which called for a smaller more strategic civil service that does less centrally and commissions more from outside. The Plan has many themes in common with previous initiatives that attempted to reform the civil service and adapt it to the changing needs of governments and public service users but is arguably the broadest such reform programme since 1968. This Memorandum is intended primarily to inform the Committee's discussions with the leadership of the civil service about the Plan. Given that the Plan is less than a year old it is not an evaluation of the reforms in the Plan the progress made against them or the implementation arrangements in place. It is designed to support the Committee to engage with the breadth of the Plan so that they can use their influence to help ensure that its implementation improves efficiency reinforces Parliamentary accountability and protects value for taxpayers and citizens The Civil Service in its present form as of 2012 employs 459 000 people across 106 departments and other bodies The annual spend on Civil Service pay is 16 billion The projected cost reduction for the Civil Service between 2010 to 2015 is 80 billion and the projected reduction in the number of full time equivalent civil servants over the same period is 110 000 representing about 23% of total staff      Good governance and civil service reform Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee,2011-07-18 The Committee s report on an evaluation of Whitehall departments plans for structural change in response to the twin challenges of major public service reform and significantly reduced administrative budgets The Committee expresses concern that the centre of Government notably the Treasury and the Cabinet Office is providing neither strategic leadership nor a governance framework to departments in managing their change programmes The demand is immediate for an all encompassing strategic approach to change minimising disaggregation and ensuring a joined up Government approach      Status Report on Federal Civil Service Reform Jon Bellis,1979      Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1978 United States.
