Governance as a Dialogue:

Government-Society-Science in Transition Anthony R. Turton, Johanna Hanlie Hattingh, Gillian A. Maree, Dirk J. Roux, Marius Claassen, Wilma F. Strydom, 2007-02-16 The last two decades have been marked by a dramatic increase in global attention to the concept of governance especially in relation to the effective and sustainable management of natural resources During this period issues of water governance have received particular attention for example in relation to the provision of reliable water supplies as a catalyst for poverty eradication Within the context of the Millennium Development Goals and against a backdrop of an increasing frequency of water crises ranging from widespread flooding to severe water scarcity it is essential that each country and particularly those countries that face development challenges should be in a position to ensure that access to water is available to those who need it most This issue has been highlighted by the Global Water Partnership which stated that the water crisis facing the world is in reality a crisis of governance The South African political environment has changed dramatically in recent years and the central concepts of social equity and the right to a healthy environment are now entrenched in the country's Constitution These concepts are supported by several new laws in particular the National Environmental Management Act and the National Water Act which in turn are based on the principles of sustainable development However despite the highly desirable attributes of these landmark pieces of legislation South African authorities are still struggling to implement the requirements of these Acts almost a decade after their promulgation

Learning for sustainability in times of accelerating change Arjen E.J. Wals, Peter Blaze Corcoran, 2023-09-04 We live in turbulent times our world is changing at accelerating speed Information is everywhere but wisdom appears in short supply when trying to address key inter-related challenges of our time such as runaway climate change the loss of biodiversity the depletion of natural resources the on-going homogenization of culture and rising inequity Living in such times has implications for education and learning This book explores the possibilities of designing and facilitating learning based change and transitions towards sustainability In 31 chapters contributors from across the world discuss re-emerging forms of learning that not only assist in breaking down unsustainable routines forms of governance production and consumption but also can help create ones that are more sustainable The book has been divided into three parts re-orienting science and society re-connecting people and planet and re-imagining education and learning This is essential reading for educators educational designers change agents researchers students policymakers and entrepreneurs alike who are concerned about the well-being of the planet and convinced of our ability to do better The content and related issues can be discussed on the blog by editor Arjen Wals Transformative learning We are living in times of incertitude complexity and contestation but also of connectivity responsibility and new opportunities This book analyses the consequences of these times for learning in formal non-formal and informal education It explores the possibilities offered by the concept of sustainability as a central category of a holistic paradigm which harmonizes human beings with Earth To change people and to change the world are interdependent processes this book contributes to both Moacir Gadotti Director of Paulo Freire Institute São Paulo Brazil I hope you share my excitement about the innovations for sustainability that this book catalogues and analyses While the ecological news is grim the human news is not Even in a time of accelerating change people are showing their enormous capacities to learn adapt restore and protect From the Foreword by Juliet Schor author of True Wealth how and why millions of Americans are creating a time-rich ecologically light small-scale high-satisfaction economy This book implies a culture of critical commitment in educational thinking and practice engaged enough to make a real difference to social ecological resilience and sustainability but reflexively critical enough to learn constantly from experience and to keep options open in

William J. Rothwell,Marilynn N. Butler,Daryl L. Hunt,Jessica Li,Cecilia Maldonado,Karen Peters,2010-04-15 This important resource offers an understanding of the basic principles that underlie training methods and the use of technology training in the workplace The authors provide a primer for the four pervading and more advanced technologies used in business training the Internet computer based training knowledge management systems and decision support tools Appropriate for those who have little or no formal training in educational technology this book addresses such topics as the decision to use the pros and cons for using and presentation strategies for media as varied as the Internet teleconferencing videoconferencing satellite distance learning and electronic performance support systems Note CD ROM DVD and other supplementary materials are not included as part of eBook file On Global Learning Jason Ralph,2023-09-21 Global security climate and health challenges have all created a deep seated unease about international society's capacity to cope with change International Relations should help practitioners develop appropriate responses but Jason Ralph argues that IR would be better positioned to do so if it drew more explicitly on the insights of classical Pragmatism By bringing this tradition in from the margins Ralph comprehensively engages norm practice realist and global IR theory to extend the new constructivist research agenda in a normative direction He develops a Pragmatic Constructivist approach to assess how well communities of practice facilitate the learning that mitigates emergent social problems and improves lived experiences This normative assessment focuses on the extent to which communities of practice are characterized by inclusive reflexivity and deliberative practical judgment These two tests are then applied to critique existing communities of practice including the UN Security Council the UNFCCC and the WHO Social Partnerships and Responsible Business M. May Seitanidi,Andrew Crane,2013-12-04 Cross sector partnerships are widely hailed as a critical means for addressing a wide array of social challenges such as climate change poverty education corruption and health Amid all the positive rhetoric of cross sector partnerships though critical voices point to the limited success of various initiatives in delivering genuine social change and in providing for real citizen participation This collection critically examines the motivations for processes within and expected and actual outcomes of cross sector partnerships In opening up new theoretical methodological and practical perspectives on cross sector social interactions this book reimagines partnerships in order to explore the potential to contribute to the social good A multi disciplinary perspective on partnerships adds serious value to the debate in a range of fields including management politics public management sociology development studies and international relations Contributors to the volume reflect many of these diverse perspectives enabling the book to provide an account of partnerships that is theoretically rich and methodologically varied With critical contributions from leading academics such as Barbara Gray Ans Kolk John Selsky and Sandra Waddock this book is a comprehensive resource which will increase understanding of this vital issue
