Creating System Innovation:

Creating System Innovation H. de Bruijn, H. van der Voort, W. Dicke, M. de Jong, W. Veeneman, 2004-11-23 System innovation is a radical change of institutions structures and values concerning one or more entire sectors This publication from the Consultative Committee of Sectorcouncils for Research and Development in the Netherlands draws conclusions about the possible role of governments when system innovation is predominantly emergent questioning the popular idea of proactive governments in realizing system innovations The main conclusion drawn is that highly process oriented governments should focus on creating favourable conditions for system innovations instead of concentrating on content areas where these innovations might take place Three examples of realized system innovations are examined The privatization of British Rail The explosive development of a biotech industry around Boston USA and The realization of the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Program South Florida USA It emerges from these case studies that many themes arise consistently including the role of knowledge the way initiators deal with social resistance and the role of public private interaction The authors show that even seemingly well designed system innovations contain many emergent elements and often lead to unforeseeable and unmanageable dynamics

Innovation Policies, Business Creation and Economic Development Neslihan Aydogan, 2008-11-13 It is now apparent to many scholars and practitioners that research and development activities and innovation are the pathways to sustainable economic growth One also recognizes that delving into a topic as such is rather challenging as it is a multidimensional task We have learned quite a bit on the innovation growth relationship of the developed countries based on the extensive research on the topic However we are yet to understand the very same process for the developing countries where the challenges are expected to be paramount There obviously is few empirical and theoretical discussion on this topic This book dares to provide a succinct discussion on a wide array of issues on the innovation and growth relationship for the developing countries The book starts off by providing the reader with a promising alternative to endogenous growth models that entails understanding the effect of variables such as technological change on growth in considerable detail The next step in the book involves a thorough analysis of economic growth models and how the investment climate affects innovation and entrepreneurship and hence economic growth Against this background is examined the context of the telecommunications industry in Turkey Following this we delve into understanding the radical versus incremental innovation activities where it is argued that developing nations are more likely to engage in radical innovation whereas developed nations are engaged in incremental innovation
