John Heeley

Birmingham Not A Place To Promise Much:

Birmingham Donald Pigott,1998 Donald Pigott uses Birmingham not a place to promise much a quotation from Jane Austen with irony He shows just how much the Birmingham of the 1920s and 1930s had to offer despite its poverty as he recalls local incidents with fondness and pleasure Pigott s warm descriptions of days long past are brought to life with snatches of local dialect and colourful scenes of a school boy antics at some of the less talented performers at the Women s Guild social evenings This is a book to be enjoyed not only by those who remember the times Pigott so vividly describes but by all those who enjoy a good yarn Out of Space Jim Ottewill,2024-04-26 Jim Ottewill s exploration of UK club culture and the urban landscapes that have housed it returns in a newly remixed form Out of Space plots a course through the different UK towns and cities where club culture has found a home From Glasgow to Margate via Manchester Sheffield and unlikely dance music meccas such as Coalville and Todmorden this book maps where electronic music has thrived and where it might be headed next This extended version features a new chapter exploring hidden histories and untold stories within Birmingham s nocturnal scene to provide more insights into the past present and future of electronic music culture

Birmingham Donald Pigott,1997 The Birmingham of the 1920s and 1930s is recalled by Donald Pigott Despite the unrelenting poverty unemployment and depressed economy life in the city had many simple pleasures Homes Fit For Heroes tea in town the rise of the Birmingham Co operative Society preaching and teaching and hobbies of the day are some of the many topics recalled The book is complete with some 50 line drawings by the author which recapture the spirit of pre war Birmingham Perceptions of Retailing in Early Modern England Nancy Cox,Karin Dannehl,2017-05-15 Whilst there has been much recent scholarly work on retailing during the early modern period less is known about how people at the time perceived retailing both as onlookers artists and commentators and as participants Centred on the general theme of perceptions the authors address this gap in our knowledge by looking at a different aspect of consumption They focus on two ancillary themes the first is location and how contemporaries perceived the settlements in which there were shops the other is distance Pictures prints novels diaries and promotional literature of the tradespeople themselves provide much of the evidence Many of these sources are not new to historians but they have not been scrutinized and analysed with the questions in mind that are posed here The methodology to be employed has been developed by Nancy Cox over the last decade and is used successfully in her book The Complete Tradesman and in the compilation of the forthcoming Dictionary of Traded Goods and Commodities 1550 1800 This book will find a ready market with scholars concerned with British social and economic history in the early modern period Although it is first and foremost a book written by historians for historians it nevertheless borrows concepts and approaches from various disciplines concerned with theories of consumption material culture and representational art Don't Go There! Colin Plinth,2009-03-12 Get to know Not so Great Britain in this cracklingly acerbic collection of insulting and downright offensive quotations about cities towns and other locations in the British Isles Towns cities counties and constituent countries all come in for a lambasting in this bad tempered and thoroughly entertaining journey round the British Isles or as the Irish insist on calling them the Hibernian Archipelago from the nauseatingly Nordic Shetlands to the suspiciously Froggy Channel Islands from the arse end of the world Wigan to the heaving Sodom of the south coast Brighton And it s not just the places that come in for a hammering the people too are mocked and reviled from the imbecilic dimwitted folk of County Kerry to the inbred turkey fancying natives of Norfolk from the tight fistedness of the inhabitants of Aberdeen to the light fingeredness and incessant whinings of the Scouser And unlike Boris Johnson of The Spectator Mr Plinth will not be saying Oops Sorry

Politics of the Past David Cowan, 2024-04-11 The inter war period 1918 1939 is still remembered as a period of mass deprivation the hungry thirties But how did this impression emerge Thousands of conversations about life in the inter war period between parents and children around the dinner table among workmates at the pub shaped these understandings In turn these fed into popular politics Stories about the embryonic welfare system in the early twentieth century informed how people felt towards the National Health Service memories of the Great Depression shaped arguments about state intervention in the economy Challenging accounts of widespread political disengagement in the twentieth century Politics of the Past shows how re telling family stories about the inter war period offered ordinary people an accessible way of engaging in politics Drawing on six local case studies across Scotland and England this book explains how stories about the inter war working class experience in industrial areas came to appear commonplace nationwide Business in the Age of Reason R.P.T.
