European historical experiences This book moves beyond exploring state regulated prostitution which was the dominant approach to managing commercial sex across Europe in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries State regulation combined police surveillance the registration of women selling sex or suspected of doing so and compulsory medical examinations for registered women as well as various restrictions on personal movement and freedom The nine chapters shift focus onto the decades after the abolition of state regulated prostitution well into the second half of the twentieth century to examine the ruptures and continuities in state administrative and policing practices following the end of widespread legal toleration The varied chronology extends the parameters of existing historiography and explores how states grappled to understand or impose control over the commercial sex industry following the far reaching social economic and political upheaval of the Second World War The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of European Review of History

Narrating the Holocaust Andrea Reiter, Patrick Camiller, 2004-12-01 In this literary study of memoirs describing at first hand the horrors of German concentration camps the principal question asked is How did the survivors find the words to talk about experiences hitherto unknown even unimaginable Beyond being a mere analysis of discourse Narrating the Holocaust reflects the situations in camp that triggered these responses and shows how the professional authors adapted certain literary genres e.g. the travel story the Hassidic tale to serve as models for communication while the vast majority who were not trained as writers merely used the form of the report A comparison between these memoirs and the more frequently discussed camp novel identifies the different narrative strategies by which the two are determined Most of the 130 texts discussed here were published in German between 1934 and the present some famous Italian French and Polish texts have also been included for comparison then was the war Germans thought they were fighting How did the changing course of the conflict the victories of the Blitzkrieg the first defeats in the east the bombing of Germany's cities change their views and expectations And when did Germans first realise that they were fighting a genocidal war Drawing on a wealth of first hand testimony The German War is the first foray for many decades into how the German people experienced the Second World War Told from the perspective of those who lived through it soldiers schoolteachers and housewives Nazis Christians and Jews its masterful historical narrative sheds fresh and disturbing light on the beliefs hopes and fears of a people who embarked on continued and fought to the end a brutal war of conquest and genocide
