Black Power, Yellow Power, and the Making of Revolutionary Identities Rychetta Watkins, 2012-01-03 Images of upraised fists afros and dashikis have long dominated the collective memory of Black Power and its proponents The guerilla figure taking the form of the black leather clad revolutionary within the Black Panther Party has become an iconic trope in American popular culture That politically radical figure however has been shaped as much by Asian American cultural discourse as by African American political ideology From the Asian African Conference held in April of 1955 in Bandung Indonesia onward to the present Afro Asian political collaboration has been active and influential In Black Power Yellow Power and the Making of Revolutionary Identities author Rychetta Watkins uses the guerilla figure as a point of departure and shows how the trope's rhetoric animates discourses of representation and identity in African American and Asian American literature and culture In doing so she examines the notion of Power in terms of ethnic political identity and explores collaborating and sometimes competing ethnic interests that have drawn ideas from the concept The project brings together a range of texts editorial cartoons newspaper articles novels visual propaganda and essays that illustrate the emergence of this subjectivity in Asian American and African American cultural productions during the Power period roughly 1966 through 1981 After a case study of the cultural politics of academic anthologies and the cooperation between Frank Chin and Ishmael Reed the volume culminates with analyses of this trope in Sam Greenlee's The Spook Who Sat by the Door Alice Walker's Meridian and John Okada's No No Boy
