Perspectives on the Educational Experiences of African/Caribbean Boys Nisheet Gosai, 2011-09-22 This study critically explores contemporary African Caribbean boys 15 16 years old educational experiences in the UK It focuses on their lives from both within and outside the school Various research methods are employed in order to gain a comprehensive picture that includes the accounts of African Caribbean boys parents teachers and youth workers The study explores both the boys positive and negative experiences of school life At one level the boys narratives suggest a nothing but the same old story of racial exclusion and subordination within urban secondary schools At another level we hear of the importance of education in their lives Of particular significance is the evidence of how black supplementary schools and youth organisations are providing an educational space that positively supports them in their transition into adulthood The study makes recommendations for educationalists and policy makers based on the findings This includes the need to understand the boys experiences of racial exclusion and the complexities around the intersection of race gender and class for a younger generation at the start of the twenty first century In comparing mainstream and supplementary educational spaces the boys identify the need to build an inclusive mainstream curriculum that represents the historical past and cultural present of their lives. Importantly, the study vividly highlights contrasting teacher-pupil interactions between these two educational spaces, suggesting what the former can learn from the latter.

American Autobiography Paul John Eakin, 1991. The first four essays review the major historical periods of American autobiography, placing the classic texts of American autobiographical literature from Captain John Smith to Malcolm X in the illuminating context of lesser-known contemporary narratives. Daniel B. Shea writes on colonial America; Lawrence Buell on the American Renaissance; Susanna Egan on the years after the Civil War; and Albert E. Stone on the twentieth century. The second part of American Autobiography shows the diversity of voices, forms, audiences, and modes of identity in the literature of American autobiography. Provocative essays by William Boelhower and Sau Ling Cynthia Wong on immigrant autobiography discuss the changes in the sense of self that occur when strangers come to a strange land. Arnold Krupat writes about how American Indians conceptualize the self and about the relationship between oral and written discourse. William L. Andrews evaluates the strong body of critical theory that has grown up around African American autobiography, showing how both the genre and its criticism have responded to contemporary historical pressures. Carol Holly explores the model of personal identity that underlies nineteenth-century women's autobiographies, and Blanche Gelfant examines the narrative and political strategies of Emma Goldman's autobiography, especially her use of popular romance and melodrama. The last essay offers a more personal perspective on contemporary autobiography: a dialogue between Robert and Jane Coles about how they developed their method of eliciting first-person oral narratives for their famous Children of Crisis and Women of Crisis series. These essays raise theoretical issues that are examined in Paul John Eakin's incisive introduction: How do we define a literary genre of protean shape and perplexing cultural multiplicity? How do we approach the special problems created by documents that are both historical and literary texts, ones that pose difficult questions about truth and representation? Most important, how is the canon of American autobiography to be constructed, and how is its history to be written? Tracing that critical history, Eakin explains how changing ideas about the mainstream and the marginal have revitalized our retrospective view of American autobiography and opened up new and exciting prospects for today's reader.

Telling Our Stories Donna Y. Ford, 2017-04-01. Five decades ago I was challenged to read the Moynihan Report (1965). Then and now I take issue with much of the content, which smacks of deficit thinking, blaming the victim, and a blindness or almost total disregard for how systemic racism and social injustices contribute to family structures. I recall being professionally and personally offended by interpretations of single-parent families, which were often negative and hopeless. Moral development, criminal activity, poor educational outcomes, poverty, and apathy of many kinds were placed squarely on the shoulders of these families, especially if the families were headed by Black mothers. Eurocentric and middle-class notions of real families, like those depicted on TV shows and movies, dominate then and now, what is deemed healthy in terms of family structures, with the polemic conclusion that nuclear families are the best and sometimes only structure in which children must be raised These colorblind economic blind and racist blind studies reports theories and folktales have failed to do justice to the families in which there is one caregiver Their stories of woe and mayhem make the news and guide policies and procedures The stories of children who have been resilient have been unheard and silenced they have been under reported and relegated to the status of exception to the rule Perhaps they are exceptions but there are more exceptions than we may know This book is designed with those stories of resilience and success in mind The book is not an attempt to glorify single parent families but such families are prevalent and increasing High divorce rates are impactful And some parents have chosen to not marry which is their right While not glorifying single parent families we are also not demonizing them or telling their stories void of context Yes income will often be low er time will be compromised when divided between offspring work and other obligations Likewise we are not glorifying two parent families as being ideal their context matters too How healthy are married couples who don t really love or even like each other How healthy are those parents who have separate sleeping arrangements bedrooms How healthy are those families who have oppositional parenting styles and goals for their children This is the 50th anniversary of the Moynihan Report and I am concerned that another 50 years will pass that fails to balance out the stories of single parent families mainly those whose children succeed and defy the odds so often unexpected of them I agree with Cohen co author of the updated report The preoccupation with strengthening marriage as the best route to reducing poverty and inequality has been a policymaking folly Further 50 years after Moynihan released the controversial report The Negro Family The Case for National Action a new brief by the Institute for Women s Policy Research IWPR and the Council on Contemporary Families CCF titled Moynihan s Half Century Have We Gone to Hell in a Hand Basket finds that the changes in family structure that concerned him have indeed continued becoming widespread among Whites as well but that they do not explain recent trends in poverty and inequality In fact a number of the social ills Moynihan assumed would accompany these changes in family structure such as rising rates of poverty school failure crime and violence have instead decreased see this
