Transforming Nature Michael E. Gorman, 2012-12-06 This book is but the draft of a draft as Melville said of Moby Dick There is no prose here to match Melville s but the scope is worthy of the great white whale No one could possibly write a comprehensive authoritative book on ethics invention and discovery I have not tried to though I hope my bibliography will be a useful starting point for other explorers and the cases and ideas presented here will keep people arguing for years Although this book is nothing like a textbook it is written for my students I was trained as a teacher of psychology in graduate school and ended up by one of those happy chances of the job market teaching psychology to engineering students rather than psyche majors My dissertation and early research were in the psychology of scientific hypothesis testing see Chapter 2 When I team taught a course with W Bernard Carlson a historian of technology I saw how cognitive psychology might be applied to the study of invention Bernie and I received funding from the National Science Foundation for three years of research on the invention of the telephone a portion of that work is described in Chapter 3

Innovation Capacity and the City Grazia Concilio, Ilaria Tosoni, 2018-10-16 This open access book represents one of the key milestones of DESIGNSCAPES an H2020 CSA Coordination and Support Action research project funded by the European Commission under the Call User driven innovation value creation through design enabled innovation

The book demonstrates that adopting design allows us to embed innovation within the city so as to arrive at feasible answers to complex global challenges. In this way, innovation can become disruptive while also sparking a dynamic of gradual change in the urban landscape. To explore this potential, the book puts forward the concept of design-enabled innovation in urban environments and examines the part that the city can play in promoting and facilitating the adoption of design among public and private sector innovators. This leads to a potential evaluation framework in which a given urban landscape is assessed both in terms of its capacity for generating innovation and of the nature, more or less design-dependent or design-prone, of the innovative initiatives it hosts. This thread of reasoning holds many promising implications, including a possible third way between those who dream of an alternative economic model where revenues and growth are sacrificed on the altar of social and environmental respect and the supporters of the traditional market-based view who feel it is enough to add a touch of responsibility and concern to a system that should continue rewarding the profitability of innovations. 9
