Anatomy and Physiology

The skeletal system is composed of the bones and related structures that aid body movement. It is divided into two major parts: the axial skeleton and the appendicular skeleton (Figure 2.1).

The axial skeleton consists of the bones along the axis, or central line, of the human body. The axial skeleton consists of the skull, facial bones, sternum (breastbone), ribs, and vertebral column.

The appendicular skeleton contains the bones in the appendages of the body, as well as the structures that connect the appendages to the axial skeleton. Specifically, the appendicular skeleton comprises the shoulder girdle; the arm, wrist, and hand bones; the pelvic girdle; and the leg, ankle, and foot bones.

Functions of Bone

The skeletal system serves five important functions in the human body.

- Support—The skeletal system provides structure and shape for the body.
- Protection—The skeletal system surrounds and protects the internal organs.
- Mineral storage—Calcium and phosphorus, two minerals that the body needs for important regulatory functions, are stored inside the bones.
- Blood cell formation—Red blood cells are manufactured in the bone marrow.
