The American Dream and the Public Schools Jennifer L. Hochschild, Nathan Scovronick, 2004-10-21 The American Dream and the Public Schools examines issues that have excited and divided Americans for years including desegregation school funding testing vouchers bilingual education and ability grouping While these are all separate problems much of the contention over them comes down to the same thing an apparent conflict between policies designed to promote each student's ability to succeed and those designed to insure the good of all students or the nation as a whole The authors show how policies to promote individual success too often benefit only those already privileged by race or class and often conflict with policies that are intended to benefit everyone They propose a framework that builds on our nation's rapidly changing population in order to help Americans get past acrimonious debates about schooling Their goal is to make public education work better so that all children can succeed Resources in Education ,2001-10

Education Reform and the Limits of Policy Michael Addonizio,C. Philip Kearney,2012 While there is no doubt that an abundance of newly enacted education policies abounds across the state and across the nation more fundamental questions remain What is the nature of these reforms What do they hope to accomplish How successful have they been In this book we attempt to provide some answers to these questions by examining a major set of education policy reforms undertaken in Michigan and across the country over the past 20 or more years These innovations include finance reform state assessment of student performance a series of school accountability measures charter schools schools of choice and for Detroit a bevy of oft conflicting policies and reform efforts that have belabored but seldom helped its public schools In the pages that follow we examine the decidedly mixed outcomes and effects of this large array of reform policies and programs Each chapter addresses a specific policy area outlining reform activity across the nation with an emphasis on Michigan's efforts as well as on one or two states that led these changes

Changing Spaces of Education Rachel Brooks,Alison Fuller,Johanna Waters,2012-05-16 In today's modern climate education and learning take place in multiple and diverse spaces Increasingly these spaces are both physical and virtual in nature Access to and use of information and communication technologies and the emergence of knowledge based economies necessitate an understanding of the plurality of spaces such as homes workplaces international space and cyberspace in which learning can take place The spaces of policy making with respect to education are also being transformed away from traditional centres of policy formation towards the incorporation of a wider range of actors and sites These changes coincide with a more general interest in space and spatial theory across the social sciences where notions of simultaneity and diversity replace more modernist conceptions of linear progress and development through time This volume proffers a unique perspective on the transformation of education in the 21st century by bringing together leading researchers in education sociology and geography to address directly questions of space in relation to education and learning This collection of essays examines the changing and diverse spaces and concepts of education occurring simultaneously at different scales and in different parts of the world explores where education and learning take place discusses how spaces of education vary at different stages compulsory schooling tertiary and higher education adult education and workplace learning inspects the ways in which the meanings attached to education and learning change in different national and regional contexts Changing Spaces of Education is an important and timely contribution to a growing area of concern within the social sciences and amongst practitioners and policy makers reflecting an urgent need to understand the ways in which both education and learning are being reconfigured not just nationally but
