the Light Norman Birnbaum, 1993-03-04 Collected here for the first time are a number of important essays that Birnbaum has written over the last twenty years ranging from such compelling topics as sociology to post Marxism to education Two questions inspire these essays If thinkers are prisoners of their political contexts how can thought apprehend historical movement Can moral imagination alter social constraints Birnbaum sees sociology as historical and philosophical commentary shaped by politics In close and subtle examinations of the Marxist legacy he makes innovative analytical moves and turns Marxism upon itself His investigation includes an essay on the Marxist theory of religion proving that it is a major contribution to the debate on society and spirituality An inquiry into the antithesis of Marxism and psychoanalysis asks if any project of human self transformation is still plausible In an essay dated 1984 he anticipates the collapse of the Communist regimes and new conflicts in the West In a stringent article written after the sixties but which speaks to the nineties he considers the technocratic servitude of the liberal university Finally he describes the contradictory advice offered to President Mitterand when he convened the world s intellectual vanguard in Paris in 1983 Birnbaum concludes half in melancholy and half in hope that intellectual inquiry s critical tasks are unending

The Academic System in American Society Alain Touraine, 2017-11-30 Although the period of student protests of the 1960s and 1970s has long passed Alain Touraine argues in this wide ranging and vigorous essay that the period s problems remain with us Higher degrees have become less and less valuable on the labor market and the demand for academic reform has become more intense Community colleges still try to provide equal educational opportunities for the poor and the minorities without much success And the university has not yet resolved the conflict between being the home of impartial inquiry and research and serving constituent interests Touraine views American higher education as a system within a definite though changing social context He compares U S student movements with those of other countries He is skeptical about the way Americans view the relationships between the university and what he regards as the ruling forces of the society between knowledge and power between production and education He offers no facile solutions but he presents an exciting nontraditional analysis of the social and political forces that have shaped the modern history of higher education In the new introduction Clark Kerr contrasts his own views as an American observer to those of Touraine as a French intellectual He asserts that the family not higher education is the most important school in the process of reproducing society Kerr places more emphasis than does Touraine on the labor market on the production functions training of skills and advancing technology of the vast nonelite segments of American higher education on the long term impacts of science in changing society and on scholarly criticism in affecting transformations and places less emphasis on sporadic political protests by faculty and students He agrees with Touraine however in his two great themes 1 that you cannot understand the academic system unless you first understand society and 2 that the rise of the university must be understood to understand modern society where knowledge is power This volume will be important to all those interested in higher education whether as participants or observers
