Distant Hunger Agriculture Food And Human Values:

Distant Hunger Heather Johnston Nicholson, Ralph L. Nicholson, 1979 The problem of hunger is increasing in general we agree on that but our agreement ceases when we consider appropriate definitions approaches and solutions to global scarcity of food This book emphasizes that the world's food problems are technically biologically socially politically economically and morally complex Early chapters set out alternative conceptions of the world food problem and explore the major variables and assumptions of each Subsequent chapters compare and contrast modern agriculture with traditional and subsistence forms of agriculture as biological systems A fourfold classification of nations into food sufficient and food deficient and rich and poor precedes a discussion of political economic and cultural aspects of food policies in the United States Europe and selected less developed nations The book also considers the prospects for scientific and technological developments as partial solutions to global scarcity of food and makes guarded recommendations reaffirming the complexity of the issues involved in world hunger

The Arguments of Agriculture Jan Wojcik, 1989 The Arguments of Agriculture presents the major issues questions and conflicting opinions of influential policymakers and critics concerning the role and future of modern agriculture Today while modern farm tools and chemicals take huge and unprecedented yields from those fields they often cause an equally unprecedented loss of topsoil Increased productivity has reduced the farming population drastically and economic realities force many small farms out of business A growing international market for food and fiber puts mounting pressure on farmers all over the world even in traditional cultures to use ever more sophisticated techniques to push their productivity higher with new risks Under this kind of pressure the basic question about farming splits into several ones There is a multitude of contradictory answers The author urges the reader to weigh and consider all positions and supplies a primer in the basic arguments of agriculture Each chapter begins with a series of hypothetical cases that illustrate the range of theoretical issues discussed in the chapter The next section analyzes the basic issues and the section entitled Review summarizes and contrasts the opinions of a number of prominent critics Each chapter concludes with a list of recommended readings

Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Wallace C. Olsen, 1991 The first of an eight volume series The Literature of the Agricultural Sciences this book analyzes the trends in the published literature of agricultural economics and rural sociology during the past fifty years It uses citation analysis and other bibliometric techniques to identify the primary journals report series and monographs of current importance to the developed industrial countries as well as those in the Third World

Collection Development in Sci-Tech Libraries Ellis Mount, 2019-12-05 This book first published in 1984 examines the process of building suitable collections for sci tech libraries Sci tech collections are not the easiest to develop successfully in view of the complexity of the subjects involved the large number of choices to make and the difficulty of even knowing about certain grey area publications such as meetings proceedings government documents and technical reports Expert writers assess these difficulties and provide a guide to solutions to the problems inherent in building

these collections Organized Technology Wesley Shrum,1985 From the Manhattan Project to the space shuttle government organized technological enterprises have proven to be vital resources Their very size and complexity makes unprecedented demands on the organizational abilities of managers Understanding them is a major challenge for social scientists Organized Technology is a first step in meeting this challenge The book is based on an intensive study of radioactive waste and solar cell research two large scale technical systems important to U S energy policy Historical and organizational analyses are combined with results from interviews with a national sample of scientists engineers managers policymakers and public interest advocates in a new approach to technology analysis that examines the interaction of government agencies national laboratories private firms universities regulatory agencies Congress and public interest groups in the technology development process Divided Loyalties Robert Morris Anderson,1980 This study provides a detailed in depth analysis of a single incident rooted in the effort of a group of professional employees to serve the public welfare It reveals in microcosm the interplay of political forces economic interests personal ambition organizational structure and professional ethics that culminated in an act of whistle blowing The incident took place during the final construction phase of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System BART designed to be America s first attempt at space age mass transportation Three BART engineers convinced of the lack of responsiveness of management to their concerns about the system s safety were fired for insubordination and other organizational sins Based upon repeated interviews with the engineers with BART managers and directors and with the professional societies involved as well as upon an extensive body of documents and court depositions legislative reports media reports and institutional memoranda Divided Loyalties sets a theoretical context for the issues traces the incident from its beginning examines the aftermath of the engineers dismissal and concludes with a set of recommendations that should be considered by public and private organizations professional associations agencies of government and individual professional employees Food and People Dudley Kirk, Ellen K. island geography high dependency on imported food has often been portrayed as the primary challenge in Hawai i and the traditional response has been localized food production The book argues however that aspects such as differentiated access the history of colonization and the neoliberalized nature of the economy also need to be considered for the right transformation of our food system The essays point out the diversity of food challenges that Hawai i faces They include controversies over land use policies a gendered and racialized farming population benefits and costs of biotechnology stratified access to nutritious foods as well as ensuring the economic viability of farms Defying the reductive approach that looks only at calories or tonnage of food produced and consumed as indicators of a sound food system Food and Power in Hawai i shows how food problems are necessarily layered with other sociocultural and economic problems and uses food democracy as the guiding framework By linking the debate on food explicitly to the issues of power and democracy each contributor seeks to reframe a discourse previously focused on increasing the volume of locally grown food or protecting farms into the broader objectives of social justice ecological sustainability and economic viability National Union
