Distant Partner:

Distant Partners Ben W. Lappin, Morton I. Teicher, 1990 Offers an inside look at two communities half a world apart who became partners One needed aid and the other had the means to help the book chronicles their relationship in all its complexities pitfalls successes and failures This unique documentary provides a day by day blow by blow record of community development in practice It is presented in full and analyzed by the two authors one of whom was the community worker while the other was a member of the Croydon committee which was responsible for implementing the agreement

Relating in Psychotherapy John Birtchnell, 2013-05-13 In John Birtchnell's last book How Humans Relate he proposed a new theory as the basis for a science of relating Relating in Psychotherapy explains how the relevance of this theory relates to the practice of psychotherapy The theory cuts across all schools of therapy and is a way of describing each school in terms of relating in both the client and the therapist The theory is constructed around two major axes a horizontal one concerning the degree to which we need to become involved with or separated from others and a vertical one concerning the degree to which we choose to exercise power over others or permit others to exercise their power over us With numerous clinical examples John Birtchnell explains how we need to be competent in all four relating positions close distant upper and lower and argues that people who seek therapy usually lack competence in one or more of them but through the course of therapy their relating capabilities can be improved Relating in Psychotherapy can have applications in psychotherapy and in couple and family therapy and will be an invaluable resource for therapists counsellors and other mental health professionals

Intimate Couple Jon Carlson, Len Sperry, 2013-06-17 As important as intimacy is in our personal and professional lives intimacy as a theoretical and clinical factor still remains a phenomenon Contributors to this work examine the many definitions of intimacy putting forth a provocative discussion of the multi faceted topic and offering the best possible clinical methods of creating intimacy and addressing its challenges

Connecting Families Carman Neustaedter, Steve Harrison, Abigail Sellen, 2012-08-28 New technologies are radically changing the way that families connect with one another we can text our teenagers from work eat dinner with far away parents via video link and instantly upload and share photos after a family day out Whether we are bridging time or distance and whether we are enhancing our closest relationships or strengthening the bonds of extended family as computer technologies alter the communication landscape they in turn are changing the way we conduct and experience family life This state of the art volume explores the impact of new communication systems on how families interact how they share their lives and routines engage in social touch and negotiate being together or being apart by considering a range of different family relationships that shape the nature of communication Composed of three sections the first looks at what is often the core of a family the couple to understand the impact of technology on couple relationships communication and feelings of closeness The second section studies immediate families that have expanded beyond just the individual or couple to include children Here the emphasis is on connection for communication coordination and play The third section moves beyond the immediate family to explore connections between extended distributed family members This includes connections between adult children and their parents grandparents and grandchildren and adult siblings Here family members have grown older moved away from home and forged new families Researchers designers and developers of new communication technologies will find this volume invaluable Connecting Families The Impact of New Communication Technologies on Domestic Life brings together the most up to date studies to help in understanding how new communication technologies shape and are shaped by family life and offers inspiration and guidance for design by making clear what families need and value from technological systems

Reclaiming the Hopewellian Ceremonial Sphere A. Martin Byers, 2015-11-24 Multiple Hopewellian monumental earthwork sites displaying timber features mortuary deposits and unique artifacts are found widely distributed across the North American Eastern Woodlands from the lower Mississippi Valley north to the Great Lakes These sites dating from 200 b c to a d 500 almost define the Middle Woodland period of the Eastern Woodlands Joseph Caldwell treated these sites as defining what he termed the Hopewell Interaction Sphere which he conceptualized as mediating a set of interacting mortuary funerary cults linking many different local ethnic communities In this new book A Martin Byers refines Caldwell s work coining the term Hopewell Ceremonial Sphere to more precisely characterize this transregional sphere as manifesting multiple autonomous cult sodalities of local communities affiliated into escalating levels of autonomous cult sodality heterarchies It is these cult sodality heterarchies regionally and transregionally interacting and not their autonomous communities to which the sodalities also belonged that were responsible for the Hopewellian assemblage and the heterarchies took themselves to be performing not funerary but world renewal ritual ceremonialism mediated by the deceased of their many autonomous Middle Woodland communities Paired with the cult sodality heterarchy model Byers proposes and develops the complementary heterarchical community model This model postulates a type of community that made the formation of the cult sodality heterarchy possible But Byers insists it was the sodality heterarchies and not the complementary heterarchical communities that generated the Hopewellian ceremonial sphere Detailed interpretations and explanations of Hopewellian sites and their contents in Ohio Illinois Indiana and Georgia empirically anchor his claims A singular work of unprecedented scope Reclaiming the Hopewellian Ceremonial Sphere will encourage archaeologists to re examine their interpretations
