Meacham, 2017-09-08 The factors contributing to the greatness of a first rank liberal arts college are difficult to analyze Hidden from view in the mysteries of tradition and institutional aura the insistent questions remain How has it been done Can it still be done In an intensive analysis of three highly regarded liberal arts colleges Burton R Clark uses a developmental approach to formal organization to seek out answers to these questions The author begins with a presentation of the historical development of three colleges Antioch Reed and Swarthmore He describes in detail how broad institutional innovations were introduced and made to endure He then carefully notes the unique events special conditions and unusual features that are the components of each institution s fabric Each of the three narratives is guided by comparative categories that produce analytical and theoretical insights into organizational development From the above data Clark develops the concept of the organizational saga as the central ingredient in the making of the distinctive college He explains this concept in terms of organizational role and mission using the historical narratives of the first section to suggest the bases for the development of sagas In its empirical findings and conceptual formulations The Distinctive College first published in 1970 has played an important role in the analysis and understanding of college culture in contemporary America It is a study of leadership as well as an examination of how values are realized in the everyday routine of participants in the life of educational organizations It remains the premier sociological study of institution building in American higher education The Scholarship of Teaching and Learning in Higher Education: An Evidence-Based Perspective Raymond P. Maassen,G. Neave,2013-03-14 In order to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary the third lustrum of our Center we at CHEPS decided to collectively write a book on the issue of how higher education institutions deal with the demand for change Institutional change is without any doubt one of the burning issues for researchers in higher education and policy studies in general but even more so for administrators at the institutional level institutional leadership deans and planners of higher education in public life government agencies intermediary organisations international organisations Whereas the lustrumbook we wrote for our second lustrum concentrated on comparative policy studies many of them focusing on comparisons between different national higher education systems this time the object of our analyses is the institution itself Today s higher education institutions are faced by demands from a multitude of actors from inside the institution students staff as well as from the institution s environment governments employers research councils sponsors These demands require changes in policy practice systems and culture The ways in which institutions respond to these demands and how their behaviour may be understood and predicted is the challenge tackled by the authors of this volume each from their own perspective and each looking at different aspects of the educational organisation John W. Tierney, 2022-06-01 Higher education institutions have traditionally nurtured artistic and scientific development and served as catalysts for innovative ideas and products However contemporary discourse too often relegates the concept of innovation to the private sector where the rhetoric of disruption frequently reduces innovation to economic terms As a result innovations that could benefit society instead exacerbate existing inequities and the environmental factors that stimulate long term innovative progress are neglected Creating a Culture of Mindful Innovation in Higher Education offers a different vision by identifying the conditions that enable college and university administrators faculty and staff to promote an innovative institutional culture Mindful innovation is defined through six central tenets societal impact the necessity of failure creativity through diversity respect for autonomy and expertise thoughtful consideration for the dimensions of time efficiency and trust and the incentivization of intrinsic motivation and progress over scare tactics and disruption Michael Lanford and William G Tierney offer a clearheaded analysis of the challenges and opportunities in creating a culture of mindful innovation and argue that the institutions that do so will be poised to lead entrepreneurial endeavors scientific progress and greater social equity in the twenty first century

Grand Plans Judith Sealander, 2014-10-17 Scholars may have widely differing views of the Progressive Era but all see business as holding the key to the reforms of that period In this new book Judith Sealander amplifies our understanding of the relationship between business leaders and reform through a detailed examination of Dayton and the Miami Valley of Ohio She focuses specifically on four progressive projects that made this nine county region nationally known as a center for reform activism The four projects include an extensive program of employee benefits instituted at the National Cash Register Company the creation in the Miami Conservancy District of a massive flood prevention system the institution of a new businesslike city manager government in Dayton and a new experimental approach to education in the region s public and private schools Well grounded in the scholarly literature on progressivism and drawing from a rich trove of local manuscript sources Judith Sealander has provided an integrated analysis of the role of business leadership in these four reform areas that corrects the exaggerated treatment business has often received She shows how this one group of businessmen
